

Providing Your Own Water

Depending on where your event is located, and how many people will be attending the event, you may need to provide your own water. There are many options to provide water, besides using plastic bottles.

Implementation

- Think about how many people will be at your event and how much water is needed
- Think about how the water will be distributed
 - tanker truck
 - portable water containers
- Look into local water distributors in order to reduce your event's carbon footprint
